Nevada Donor Network & Latin Chamber of Commerce of Nevada Launch ‘Corazon de Esperanza’ Latino Donor Outreach Campaign

LAS VEGAS/RENO – Monday, May 9, 2022 - Nevada Donor Network and the Latin Chamber of Commerce of Nevada have partnered to launch, Corazon de Esperanza (Heart of Hope), a statewide Latino organ, eye and tissue donor outreach campaign. The first initiative of its kind by the two organizations, Corazon de Esperanza is geared towards educating and encouraging Latino residents and other populations about the importance of becoming donors to help save lives.

“Historically, multicultural communities are less likely to register to become organ, eye and tissue donors due to myths and misconceptions coupled with a general distrust of the health care system,” said Steven Peralta, president of Nevada Donor Network Foundation. “We know that through education, advocacy and putting a ‘face’ to donation - sharing stories from Latinos in our community whose lives have been saved by organ donation or who have a family member who made the choice to become a heroic donor - we can save more lives.”

Members of the Latin Chamber of Commerce will serve as ambassadors for the campaign, connecting with their customers, colleagues and loved ones to lend more trust to the organ donation process. Nevada Donor Network will support members by providing bilingual informational materials about multicultural donation and dispelling myths surrounding organ donation; customized social media content for members to use on their channels; participate in community outreach events targeted to the Latino community; as well as provide speakers to give presentations in front of groups and employers.

“Corazon de Esperanza is all about engaging the Latino community in Nevada in conversations about organ, eye, tissue donation, dispelling myths that create a barrier to registration and moving the needle on the number of Latinos registered to become donors,” said Peter Guzman, president of the Latin Chamber of Commerce. “We encourage our community and the over 90,000 Hispanics across the state to register as organ, eye and tissue donors.”

Nationally, 60% of the transplant waiting list are people from a multicultural background, which includes Hispanics/Latinos, Blacks/African Americans, Native Americans and Asian Americans & Pacific Islanders. In Nevada, there are currently 140 Hispanic/Latino Nevadans on the transplant waiting list, and 22,218 (20%) of people on the national transplant waiting list are Hispanic/Latinos. Certain health conditions, like diabetes and high blood pressure that can lead to the need for an organ transplant, contributes to the high number of minorities on the waiting list.

While donors of different backgrounds routinely match, there is a higher likelihood of achieving a match if the donor and intended recipient share the same ethnic background. Critical factors in donor/recipient matching, such as blood types and tissue markers, are more likely to be found among members of the same ethnicity.

“When we talk about the need for greater diversity in registered donors, there are two factors that come into play: Donor and recipient matching and increasing access to transplantation for everyone,” said Peralta. “If we can increase the diversity of donors, which increases the likelihood of matching, all individuals waiting for a second chance at life will have a better chance of receiving a life-saving organ transplant.”
